Ideas on what to do next:

Making changes:

- Designated attackers who stay in the end zone.
- Players can use their feet or be allowed to move with the ball or to tackle.
- Change team/pitch sizes • Different points for different types of passes.
- End zone can also be squares in the corners of the pitch.

Easier for some:

- Change team match ups. • Use different equipment. • Bigger balls.
- Softer balls / Bean bags / Ability balls. • Use hands throughout.
- Make pitch and game smaller = Shorter passing distances.

Harder for some:

- Bigger teams. • Use feet only. • Once there is a score in an end zone attack in the opposite direction straight away.
- Make the end zone smaller.

How to get started:

- 2 Teams – 2v2 3v2 3v3 4v3 or 4v4.
- Start the game using hands
- No moving with the ball
- No tackling to gain the ball - only intercepting
- In order to score, play a pass to a player into the other team's end zone. The receiving player has to gain control of the ball in order to score.
- After scoring the other team gets possession from their own end zone.
- Any attacking player can go into the end zone.
- Defending players are "safe" in their own end zone.

Questions/Challenges:

- What do you have to do before the ball arrives (e.g. look)?
- What different parts of the feet can you use to control the ball?
- How can you add disguise when receiving the ball?
- How do you know where your team mates are?
- Try to receive the ball into space.
